Marine Cargo
Protection for goods by land, sea, air and in storage
Know You Can

Why cargo insurance?

More goods are being shipped today than ever before. As logistics chains become more complex, the risk of theft, loss or damage increases. Threats such as piracy, war and terrorism are also real fears for anyone sending goods abroad.

Who needs it?
For many the product they ship is everything. If they lose it, it could put the future of the business at risk. Insurance can help protect their balance sheet and their livelihoods.

Isn't it covered by the carrier?
Shippers and carriers have gaps in their insurance that can leave the cargo owner seriously exposed. Their legal liability is limited and, even if they do pay, they are unlikely to cover the full value of any goods damaged or lost.

Are there any hidden risks?
Owners of cargoes that survive an incident at sea can be forced to compensate others whose cargo was abandoned to protect the ship, under the 'general average' rule. This can be expensive without insurance.

The go-to insurer for cargo risks

AXA XL Cargo insurance delivers protection for cargoes where and when clients need it. Our insurance covers physical loss or damage to goods at sea, on road, rail, air and in the post, whether the owner transports them, or uses a shipper, haulier or courier. Cover can also be extended to protect goods while they are in storage, offering complete protection for all stages of the logistics chain.
